

Wireless 9-1-1 Plan Check List

Schedule A:

- Name of ETSB or qualified governmental entity requesting to be an authorized wireless 9-1-1 answering point. Contact person's name, address and telephone number for the system.
- Detailed explanation of jurisdictional boundaries, specifying whether such jurisdictional boundaries will differ from the wireline 9-1-1 jurisdictional boundaries.
- If the jurisdictional boundaries differ, an explanation of whether additional public safety agencies will be dispatched in response to wireless 9-1-1 calls, and how such additional public safety agencies will be dispatched.
- Name of the 9-1-1 service provider and list of wireless carriers providing service in the specified jurisdiction.
- Name, address and phone number of the project coordinator designated by 9-1-1 system management.
- Phase of wireless 9-1-1 service being provided and wireless solution(s) (NCAS, CAS, etc..) with a time-line for implementation.

Schedule B:

- A list of PSAP's within the 9-1-1 system that will be answering 9-1-1 wireless calls and their addresses.

Schedule C:

- If adding a jurisdiction, which differs from the landline system, provide a list of additional public safety agencies that will need to be dispatched in response to wireless 9-1-1 calls and the associated call handling agreements.

Schedule D:

- Network diagram provided by the 9-1-1 service provider showing the overall system configuration.

NOTE: If the diagram can not be provided in the initial plan, than it must be submitted no later than January 31st, 2000 when the annual wireline 9-1-1 diagram is due.

Schedule E:

- If agreeing to answer wireless 9-1-1 calls for another jurisdiction, copies of the intergovernmental agreements entered into between ETSB's for the handling of those 9-1-1 calls must be included.

NOTE: If these agreements can not be provided in the initial plan, than an addendum must be filed with these agreements no later than January 31st of 2001.

Schedule F:

- Test plan

Submit two copies of the wireless plan to Commission 9-1-1 Program Staff by November 30, 2000. Upon approval Commission Stall will provide a copy of the written notification to your system and a copy of your plan and notification to CMS for its processing requirements.